NINE COMMUNIST DIVISIONS ENGAGED IN BATTLE WITH UN TROOPS ALONG KOREAN FRONT, AS THE INVADERS UNLEASH NEW ATTEMPTS TO BREAK THROUGH TO TAEGU

Outnumbered Americans Bitterly Resist Drive By Two Divisions

SEE-SAW FIGHTING

Airplanes Bomb Incessantly On All of The Sectors

By Howard Handleman

(Far Eastern Director, I. N. S.)

TOKYO, Aug. 22 — (INS) — Nine Communist divisions were engaged in battle tonight with United Nations troops along the Korean front as the invaders unleashed new attempts to break through to the port of Pusan and the inland hub of Taegu.

Outnumbered Americans were bitterly resisting a drive by troops of two enemy divisions along Korea's southern seaboard in violent see-saw fighting that raged only 35 miles west of all-important Pusan.

Above Taegu, at the northwest corner of the front, U. S. and South Korean troops were locked in a series of grim struggles with armor-paced forward elements of six Red divisions, supported by heavy artillery. As of Tuesday afternoon, the enemy's pressure toward Taegu from the north was held in check, despite Red infiltrations behind United Nations lines.

Thirteen miles southwest of Taegu, still another North Korean division was building up its Hyon-pung bridgehead across the Nak-tong River in the face of counter-thrusts by air-supported American troops.

Along Korea's eastern seaboard, two South Korean divisions pushed another five miles farther north above the liberated port of Pohang and also advanced slowly beyond recaptured Kiky against stiffening Red opposition.

On all sectors and far behind the enemy's lines, swarms of land-based and carrier-borne planes incessantly bombed, rocketed and strafed the Red forces and their

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

The 700,000 Christians in areas now under North Korean control are in "imminent danger" of mass murder, the South Korean Government warned in an appeal for speedy ratification of the United Nations convention outlawing genocide.

India will not offer at today's Security Council session her proposal for a committee to handle the Korean issue because many members have received no instructions from their governments. No progress was made at a secret meeting toward breaking the Soviet filibuster in the Council.

With the favorable turn of events in Korea, Europe moved to tighten its defenses. On Friday a five-power air exercise will test the Western Union's planes and radar ring. Britain's High Commissioner in Germany returned home presumably to discuss West Germany's role and the North Atlantic Council deputies will meet in London today. Despite a boycott by British Laborites, the Council of Europe reached a "measure of agreement" on a unified European army. The combined armed strength of Soviet satellites was estimated at more than 1,000,000 men, at least ten armored and many motorized divisions.

An economic mobilization bill giving President Truman wide powers over wage, price and rationing controls was passed by the Senate last night, 84 to 3. The Administration suffered a defeat in a provision ordering simultaneous imposition of wage and price controls. A. F. L. President Green told President Truman wages should be permitted to reach parity with living costs before being frozen.

A Senate committee unanimously urged prompt passage of a bill raising family pay-allotments of soldiers.

New White House efforts to mediate the railroad dispute failed as the conductors' and trainmen's union called token strikes in three cities. Steel production was halted in some plants. Mediation efforts also failed in Canada where a strike is scheduled to start today.

THOMAS DEPLORES LACK OF INTEREST

Athletics' Scouts Have Trouble Organizing Two Teams

INVITES YOUTHS OUT

Ira Thomas, A's scout, who is conducting the baseball school on Memorial field, yesterday deplored the lack of interest in baseball by the youths of Lower Bucks County.

When the school started yesterday morning there wasn't enough boys present to field two teams and Thomas and his assistants were forced to leave some positions open in order to get the boys to do some hitting and fielding. Throughout the day, there was a dribble of players off and on but not enough to impress the scouts.

Thomas feels that more boys from this section should turn out for the school, even if it means losing a day's work.

"If a boy feels that he has the ability to play good baseball, then he should be willing to sacrifice some time to show us just what ability he has. We will advise him whether he has enough ability for him to leave his job to go into the baseball field," stated Thomas.

"If I didn't take a chance in trying out for baseball when I was a youngster, I guess I would still be swinging a hammer on an anvil in Connecticut," the A's scout said, recalling his younger days.

Thomas and his aides, Joe O'Rourke, Coombs, and "Reds" Hoffman, will hold the school again today and tomorrow from nine in the morning until four in the afternoon.

Yesterday, the scouts were particularly interested in "Billy" Hibbs, an Emille youth, who finished at Pennsbury High in June, and "Frankie" Pursell, most valuable player of the Bristol League in 1949, and leading home run hitter of the Tri-County League this season.

Fire Chiefs Plan to Aid Civilian Defense in County

UPPER BLACK EDDY, Aug. 22 — Bucks county fire chiefs discussed last month's fires, made plans for civilian defense, and found time to set a date for a picnic as they met here last night in their monthly meeting.

Robert O'Neill, of Cornwells Heights, presided at the meeting of the Bucks County Fire Chiefs Association.

Reports on a series of fires in the Upper Black Eddy area last month told that they were started by a young boy, who has been committed to an institution, it was stated.

The two outstanding fires of the past month were said to be the barn blaze at Musselman's farm in Newtown, last Tuesday, and the Freas' lumber mill fire in Andalusia on Aug. 8.

The chiefs, representing 23 companies, discussed the forthcoming civilian defense setup and the part they would be called upon to play.

Sept. 17 was chosen as the date for the picnic, which will be held at Sheese's farm in Fallsington.

The next meeting will be held on Sept. 18 in Bristol fire house No. 6. About 65 persons were present at last night's meeting.

ORDER 44 MEN FROM HERE TO BE INDUCTED SEPT. 6

First Draft Call Issued Since Board Has Been On Part-Time Basis

TO LEAVE AT 7.51 A. M.

Men Selected Come From Various Communities Near Here

Local Board, No. 35, Selective Service, announced today that 40 men have been ordered to report for induction into the armed services on Sept. 6.

This is the first draft call since January of 1948, when draft boards throughout the country went on a part-time basis. The draft machinery was again set in motion by President Truman on July 7 after Congress had approved a one-year extension of the law several weeks before.

The local men who have received their induction notices range in age from 22 to 25 years. All males between 19 and 26 are eligible for service, but local boards have been calling the older men first. On a national scale, the Defense Department wants 50,000 men in uniform in September, and another 50,000 the following month. More draft calls are expected to follow.

The local board sent 44 men to Philadelphia for their examinations on July 27, and 30 of these proved acceptable. Eleven more men passed out of 17 who were called on Aug. 10. All of those who qualified became eligible for induction 21 days after their examinations.

The men are scheduled to leave here on Sept. 6 on the 7:51 morning train for Philadelphia. There they will most likely be taken to Schuylkill Arsenal for further examinations. Those who pass the final screening will be sent to training camps, the location of which has not been announced.

Mary Elizabeth Yeagle, clerk of the local board, said that the men are from Bristol, Croydon, Langhorne, Cornwells Heights, Morrisville, Oakford, Yardley, Trevose, Newtown, Jamison, Neshaminy and Southampton.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan (Distributed by International News Service)

If that's still a "police action" in Korea it's odd that some of the wagons have come back yet.

And the way General Hershey talks, the Administration must be planning on opening another dozen precincts.

Some question continuing use of the phrase "police action" since one fellow wrote home and says "Funny thing about this... I'm getting shot at just like it was war."

But we understand "police action" is official right through October so we won't be confused by changing terminology while we're busy with the election campaigns.

Some don't like use of the word "war" but it went very well in the phrase "all ad short of war" right up to the day we, unfortunately, got blasted into the war we were all short of aiding.

It should still be usable since the evidence is we're short again.

SKY MUST WAIT

"What will they think of next?" is usually intended as a rhetorical question. In a nation of goofy gadgets and mechanical miracles, it is heard often. But the other day a scientist asked it seriously, and tried to supply some answers.

Dr. Anthony Standen, author of "Science Is a Sacred Cow," spoke in a symposium at the University of Notre Dame. His subject was: "What will scientists think of next?" He had three main answers: (1) devices to cut off gravity, (2) weather control mechanisms, and (3) agriculture in atmospheric spaces above the earth.

Is he kidding? His predictions, for all their comic strip flavor, have the quality of scientists approaching their subject over-seriously and over-credu-lously—qualities which Dr. Stan-den has deployed in his book.

Gravity is still something of a mystery, but there is room for doubt that it is a force that can be "cut off." Certainly the Einsteinian theory that gravitation is an attribute of the curvature of space rather than a force of attraction seems to imply that it can't be tampered with.

Weather control by mechanical devices is another question. It seems to be possible to make a little rain fall under certain conditions which might otherwise have fallen in a different time and place.

Farms in the sky are a little too much for our imagination to encompass. Hydroponics—farming without dirt—may have possibilities. Harvesting the vast edible resources that grow in the sea in the form of plankton may come about one of these days.
The sky, we suspect, will have to wait.

ELECTRONIC BRAIN

The enormous amount of brainpower and man hours a rack of humming, clicking vacuum tubes will save causes one to be open-mouthed in amazement. There are many names for such machines, but "electronic brain" seems to be the most descriptive and colloquial.

The number and type of individual operations these "brains" will perform are legion. Generally speaking it can be said that they are performing a tremendous service for the human masters that run them.

They assimilate and collate data and come up with answers that would take the lifetimes of skilled mathematicians to compute. They save vast amounts of research money and chop months, even years, from the time it takes, say, an aircraft engineer to plot the speed and altitude of a guided missile that hasn't yet been manufactured.

One looks at the accomplishments of these massive gimmicks with longing. It is wished that their almost supernatural powers could be diverted to solving problems that vex and concern freedom-loving people today.

Finds Studio Filled With Shower Guests

CROYDON, Aug. 22—Upon her return home, after being called to Bristol to try on one of the dresses being made by her fiancée's mother, Mrs. Harold Jenkins, for her trouseau, Miss Patricia Coyne attended what she thought was a commercial demonstration. She learned that a group of friends and relatives had gathered to tender her a linen shower. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Earl Mohr, Jr., who will act as matron of honor for her sister, and was held at the Coyne Studio on Friday evening.

The studio was decorated with white paper streamers and white bells. The unique table decoration was a raft of green and white cellophane rolls on which stood a bride doll holding in one hand an ear, and in the other the silver covered pole to which a handkerchief massage was attached. From this pole, showered the white ribbon to which gifts were attached. The entire raft was surrounded by a sea of white hydrangeas and small rafts made of candy sticks and cellophane masts, which were later given as favors. Flanking the centerpiece were vases of pink and white garden flowers.

over the war theater Monday.
A briefing officer at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters announced Tuesday evening that nine North Korean divisions were "in contact" with Allied troops along the Korean battle perimeter.

The enemy's heaviest pressure, the officer said, was being exerted against the U. S. Army's 25th Division in the extreme south and along the American-South Korean defense sector atwar Taegu's northern approaches. Three out of nine attacking Red tanks were destroyed above Taegu Tuesday.

What was officially described as "continuous fighting" raged through its third day in the south sector where two Red regiments were spearheading a twin-pronged offensive aimed at Masan, western gateway to Pusan.

Gen. MacArthur said in a communique issued late Tuesday that the 25th Division was locked in "heavy" combat with numerically superior enemy forces.
Along the lower rim of the enemy's drive, a regimental spearhead of a fresh Red division tentatively identified as possibly the Seventh stormed what MacArthur described as "crucial positions" on Sobuksan ridge, just south of Tundok.

For the second straight day, the 25th Division's famed Negro 24th Regimental Combat Team (RCT) fought fiercely to hold the strategic height, only 35 miles west of the entry port of Pusan and nine miles west of Masan.
